These are not necessary changes to the addendum, just points that staff needs clarified in order to process the application.

Val:

Based on review of ATC's Addendum, here are some additional information issues/questions.

1.) The three GIS distribution layers are confusing, and possibly overlapping. The largest has different line patterns, without a corresponding key. One layer appears to list lines by ownership, but does not indicate which lines are owned by which company. One layer appears to provide the location for all single phase distribution. We need to have the layers clearly marked. Could ATC's GIS person contact Marilyn Weiss to clear up this confusion?

2.) The response to Item 9, page 11A of the Addendum, provides a cost estimate for undergrounding all three-phase distribution circuits. Does ATC intend to underground all three-phase distribution along the selected route?

Other information requests may follow as I work on the EA.
